Pre-Project Statement

The website that I will be developing revolves around the game Destiny 2. The idea is to provide a website that brings the play with up-to-date information about what's happening within destiny during the week such as recent events, weekly raids, and weekly bounties, as well as being able to see your loadout that you currently have equipped amongst each subclass. The extra feature I would bring to the website would be an image that acts as a button for a voice line to be produced when pressed. The database would take the spots of loadouts and bounties, simulating a real-time update. I will be using React as my JavaScript framework along with Bootstrap as my CSS.
